It was year 2002, when I meet Annabelle Alova, whom I used to call bell. I meet her through a common friend I thought I was just a simple acquaintance and I didn't expect that it will last for a long time. Bell, at first she is a bit quiet, less talk, but when I got a chance to know her better I found out that she got sense of humor, and you easy to be with. There's a lot of reason why I admire her as a friend. Bell is god bearing person, very honest, with self confident and above loving and caring to her family, friends and love ones. She is a very responsible hardworking, disciplined and trust worthy. When she went abroad to work and earned better she never forget the people she left. She still the same and never change. She has always the same bell I used to know.
