

Dear Sir/Ma'am,

First of all, let me greet you a very pleasant good day to you all upon reading this single letter of mine. Please allow me to introduce about myself. My name is DELIA C. AUMAN, 32 years old, single and I live in Davao Oriental, Philippines but I am currently employed in COMPEQ LT-D, TAIWAN, Republic of China. I belong to a very poor family. My father is a farmer, a tenant to a very small corn farm and my mother is only a housewife. My parents had never been in school during their young days, they said that during their early time, schooling is not a priority but to go farm for work instead. I struggled hard just to finish my studies. I finished my studies through my own effort. I applied as a working student at the University where I graduated. And since, we live in the province, very far from the school where I studied, what I did was, I found a person who can help me free my meals and shelter while I am still studying. I worked for them in return as a house helper. I helped them washed clothes, ironing, cleaning the house and also cook some Filipino dishes. Sometimes, I am also seeing and caring their kid when they not around. During Sunday time, they let me care their grandmother who were about 90 years old that time. I assisted their grandma in bathing, feeding, took up vital sign and accompany her in doctor's visit. That was how much I really appreciated the work of a caregiver.

After I graduated from a 4 year course which was a Bachelor of Science in Accountancy, I worked as a bookkeeper for about 2 years but I realized that my salary can't sustain the needs of my parents that's why I decided to go abroad for work. So I went in Taiwan worked as a factory worker for 6 years 2000-2006, with same company. When my contract was finished, I went back home, I rested 1 month and I enrolled a (6) six months Caregiving training course. A part of this training I had been trained at DSWD Home for the Aged, Region XI Davao City Phils. and SEMINAR/WORKSHOP and HANDS-ON (ASD) Autism Spectrum Disorder. During my training I love and enjoyed very much in taking care of elderly and special children, who were also needs special attention. How it was touched my life more and appreciated LIFE more and make life very best out of what I can be.
